

2018 Basketball Draft Process

Player Evaluations (All players should attend evaluations including head coach's child)

- During the, coaches administered, evaluation each head coach will rate all players present with a number value 1-5 (5 being best).
- The ratings from each head coach will be turned in to the Athletic Staff at the end of the evaluation session(s).
- Staff will average all ratings sheets for each player and assign a final value to each player for the purposes of the next step in the draft process. Players who do not attend will be placed into the random assignment pool.

Draft

- The head coach's child will end up on the coach's team but may not start there.
- Head Coach may have one assistant coach – the assistant coach's child will be part of the draft process as well.
- Based on the average ratings from evaluations, staff will group players by round – if there are 6 teams in the league the top 6 rated players will be randomly assigned in the first round to rosters, then the 2nd group of 6 and so on until all rated players are on a roster.
- Once all rated players are assigned to a roster all players who did not attend will be randomly assigned to a roster until all available players are on a roster.
- The rosters will then be assigned a name and presented to the group of head coaches for a 2nd evaluation – during this time as a group the coaches will assess the equality in each roster, players may be swapped within the same round they were assigned only during this part of the process.
- Once all coaches agree that the rosters are as evenly matched as possible – the team names will be placed in a blind draw and each coach will select to see which roster they get – the head and assistant coach's kids again must be moved/swapped within the same round they were assigned.
- Once the number of players and all trades are complete there will be another final coach's group assessment of all rosters – once all agree the process was as fair and even as possible rosters are final.
- Trades for friends are allowed but must follow the same assigned round as above and must be viewed as fair by all coaches.
